

Overview

Simikot is situated in the far north- western part at Karnali zone of Nepal, also boarding by India and Tibet independent region. It is the headquarter of Humla district due to geographic form is one of the inaccessible and remote area in Nepal. The trekking route goes beside with Dolpo and Mugu district in the Trans- Himalaya region. Perhaps we need to walk through remote village with incredible traditional culture and untouched nature. This region is unaffected by modernization and protected nature prettiness, tradition and culture. Only possible to reach by scheduled flight from Kathmandu. There is nonstop local bus service from Kathmandu to Nepalgunj and then flight to Simikot. We can use alternate route for this trip, flight from Surkhet to Simikot but flights are not regular only sometimes. The local people most of the time, they charter helicopter from Surkhet to the delivery of daily life foods, medicines and other important materials and import export products. The Simikot is very popular access point for visit to Manasarovar and Mount Kailash journey. The large number of Indian pilgrimage visitor makes helicopter charter flight to Simikot and starts journey of Kailash. There is no road access by bus but we should walk from Sanfebagar in Accham district, its takes around ten days through a hike. The trekkers can use alternate walk from the another district of Bajura and the local Kolti airport, however the visitors should be wait longer for catch the next flight to Simikot.

There is no tea house amenities like other trekking area in Nepal, thus we need to arrange camping trek. For the Simikot, we can use another trekking route but need to walk one and two week through the Limi valley and other one is three week trip with Nyin to Limi valley. From there, the trail goes towards south beside with the bank of Humla Karnali River bottomless below Simikot and towards east will get several wonderful villages. After ups and downs towards northwest, brings us to Humla Karnali River valley and ultimately Tibet. If we walk more northerly path, its takes us to the remote and inhabited Limi valley. From there, could be see a beautiful Saipa Himal (7031m) is one of the tallest mountain in this area, meadow valley with group of Yaks and sheep makes our trek excellent. If visitors want to know more about century history of Tibet, this wonderful trek will be best. The unique culture and tradition still conserved from centaury. The local people are staying in stone house is plastered by mud and making their source of revenue with animal husbandry. They are still practicing Bonpo Buddhism, each village have Mani walls, Chortens, Monasteries. There are also can see colorful Buddhist prayer flag has been flirting each house and quite more in the mountains. The Nyinba, Khampa, Limipa and Bynsi are main tribes of Humla and still they are believe to Polyandry wedding system in the community.

The trekking begins from Simikot with an incredible scenery flight following the beautiful Himalayan ranges. After landing to small airstrip in Simikot, we starts trip and then hike up to Nara La pass (4560m) with the ethnic typical local villages namely; Dharapori, Kermi, Yalbang, Yuchu, Tumkot, Yari and then moving ahead to Limi valley from Hilsa (3674m) compose a round back to Simikot via Nyalu La (5001m). The Limi valley is inaccessible extending from Hilsa hill pass to another hill pass of Chang La between Tibet and Nepal. During the trip, we spend a night in the wilder camp are memorable stay with unseen
